Introduction

The ICA Global 300: The 2008 listing

This is the third consecutive year that the International Co-operative Alliance (ICA) publishes the Global300 list to highlight the important role co-operative enterprises play in national and international economies.

The Global 300 listing responds to those who continue to underestimate the significance of co-operatives. It provides financial and other data that proves that co-operatives are successful businesses, important employers and contribute in real terms to economic stability and sustainable development.

More than just a list: A Global Online Database

To enhance data collection facility and ensure reliable data, the ICA has started work on a global on-line database. The web-based global co-operative database will include quantitative data - financial and other indicators - but will also grow into a one-stop shop to learn about the Global 300 co-operatives, ICA members and other co-operatives. In a staged development, the database will generate co-operative profiles including financial data, Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR), sustainability and social reports, as well as links to current news.

The database is expected to assist in strengthening ICA's role in building networks of global co-operative leaders. It also has the potential of leading and co-ordinating global, regional and national initiatives on data collection and evidence-based policy and advocacy.

Finally, the development of the on-line database will further address ICA's strategic objective of promoting co-operatives as a special values based business model by building a co-operative business intelligence service for analysis and benchmarking performance, not only in financial terms, but also in terms of the co-operative values and principles.

Methodology

The following approach was adopted in compiling the 2008 Global 300 list.

Data Source

The two primary data sources used were:

- Audited public accounts – these provide an independent verifiable source for the financial figures. As a consequence of our work, we have developed an extensive electronic database of Global 300 annual reports and other relevant public documents.
- Existing databases of co-operative and mutual organisations. In particular we have worked with a number of ICA's national members, sectoral organisations and co-operative researchers to ensure consistency of data and approach.

Selection Criteria

Revenue was used as the criteria for selection and ranking. US dollar was used with local currencies converted into USD on the conversion rate at the respective 2006 financial year end. The highest level of audited business aggregation was used. This has meant that we include a number of regional co-operatives belonging to national groups, where such national groups do not have audited consolidations. If a co-operative or mutual group had majority ownership of an underlying (non-co-operative) business it was included if brought to account in the group's balance sheet.

Sectors

In relation to the various sectors represented in the list we have adopted the following:

- For insurance we have used net premiums written, where available, rather than the total revenue for the business. This is consistent with the recommended approach of ICMIF "as it's the part of the revenue representing the insurance business".
- For agriculture, retail and wholesale we have used the total revenue figures.
- For co-operative banks, UK Building Societies, and non-USA Credit Unions we have used net interest income plus other income. For USA based co-operative banks and credit unions we have followed the approach of NCB of the United Nations and taken i.e. total received interest income plus other income.

Note that this refinement of methodology from the approach taken for the first list has meant in a few instances our revenue figures are not comparable between years.

Due care

While we have taken care to ensure the information is accurate, it is not possible to guarantee total accuracy in an exercise which involves collecting data from many hundreds of sources. We welcome any corrections, additions or deletions to our data.
